2012 Outside Spending, by Groups

In addition to "super PACs" and regular political action committees (which raise money via contributions capped at $5,000 per year), special interest groups have several other vehicles at their disposal to influence elections and policy as well. These include "527 organizations" which register with the Internal Revenue Service and 501(c) nonprofit operations, which may engage in political activities, as long as these activities do not become their primary purpose. 501(c) groups must also register with the IRS, but, unlike 527 organizations, are not required to publicly disclose their donors.
