

Spike Bulldog

For other uses, see the disambiguation page for Spike.

Spike is a grey bulldog that appears in many episodes of Tom and Jerry. He is a friend of Jerry and a rival of Tom, however, sometimes he is a rival of both like the episode Dog Trouble.

He hates Tom because in the episodes that Spike appears, fights Tom is chasing Jerry around but ends up giving Spike or his son, Tyke, a bad day. Obviously, whenever Spike tells Tom not to do a certain thing (ex. dirtying Tyke), Jerry does his best to get Tom in trouble (in the example, Jerry would get Tyke as dirty as possible). Tom Cat's son is his foe and hero. Spike also appeared in some of the recent cartoons featuring a basset hound called Droopy, another popular MGM cartoon character.

He's also in Tom and Jerry Tales. He appeared in most episodes, in "Catfish Follies", he is a dogfish and also in "Zent Out of Shape" where he is similar to Godzilla. He also beats Jerry occasionally this probably that Spike finally notices it was Jerry who was actually really responsible for bothering his son, stealing his bones and getting disturbed and injured that Jerry caused on him and messing up his son.

You can also see Spike in Mickey Mouse, but as Butch the Bulldog.

Trivia

- In Quiet, Please! Spike has an anchored tatoos on his left upper arm when he chase after Tom to skin him alive near the end after his sleep is being disturbed by Jerry who planted a dynamite stick underneath him and should be the one that Spike should skin Jerry alive. It is unknown if Spike still has an anchored tatoos.
- During that time after Tom bothers him and his son. Jerry was the next to bother them so that he could blame all of his antics on Tom and Spike falls for Jerry's tricks and Spike beats Tom.
