LIVABILITY SEARCHSM

In trying to envision a home's suitability for her and her household, women told us they essentially use four aspects or "lenses" when evaluating a home: Entertaining; De-stressing; Storing and Flexible Living. In color-coding our floor plans accordingly, Livability At A Glance makes it easier to visualize how the home lives.

The four Livability lenses also are a better way to search for the perfect home plan. Sure, searching by overall size and number of bedrooms is important—it reduces the number of plans to look at. But Livability Search is different, allowing you to search for home plans based on how you want the home to live. By rating how important each of those four Livability lenses are to you, you'll likely find specific plans that interest you more quickly and maybe discover something about your preferences in the process!

LIVABILITY AT A GLANCE™

Rather than starting with the elevation when looking at a house plan, women often begin by looking at floor plans. Which begged the question, “How do women look at home plans?” As we delved into this topic, we learned women look at a home plan to determine “how the home lives.” From this discovery, Livability at a Glance was born.
