

Big Four Bridge

The Big Four Bridge spans the Ohio River and connects Louisville, Kentucky to Jeffersonville, Indiana for pedestrians and bicyclists.

The ramp coming off of the Big Four Bridge into Historic Downtown Jeffersonville opened May 2014.

The bridge was completed in 1895, and updated in 1929. It remained closed for years until re-opening for pedestrian and bicycle traffic in May 2014. The bridge takes its name from the defunct Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis Railway, which was nicknamed the Big Four Railroad

Big Four Station in Jeffersonville

Visited 03/21/2017

The park space that people see when they come across the Big Four Pedestrian/Bicycle Bridge into Historic Downtown Jeffersonville, Indiana is called Big Four Station. Featuring lots of green space, fountains, a pavilion, and a playground, it is planned as place that people will enjoy for everyday recreation and special events. Big Four Station opened in October 2014.

Business booms on both sides of Big Four Bridge

The opening of the Big Four Bridge has been a boom for businesses on both sides of the Ohio River. Two cities are now connected. In financial terms, the big winners are the businesses by the Big Four Bridge. Fox [Read More ...]

Posted in Big 4 Bridge News | Leave a comment