As one of the primary sponsors of the Opportunity Scholarship Act, I would like to address a few points raised in The Record's March 5 editorial "No to Vouchers."

The OSA would give companies tax credits to pay private, public or parochial school tuition for students in some of our state's lowest performing schools and districts. Low-income children in chronically under-performing schools could use this money to attend quality schools of their choosing, approved by the state Department of Education, where they can receive the education they deserve.
